2.	Background/ Introduction	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Welcome note by Dr Priyanka Soni, Associate Professor, Clinical Haematology, MGH ▪ Presentation by sister Menka Mishra, Nurse Educator, MGUMST on “Fast HUGS BID” ▪ Panel discussion with knowledge sharing covered the following points: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. What are some basic but crucial steps nurses can take to prevent the spread of infections within the ICU environment? 2. What are the critical roles and responsibilities of nurses within a Code Blue team, and how can nurses ensure effective teamwork and communication during high-stress situations such as cardiac arrests? 3. How do you believe effective communication by nurses impacts patient care and outcomes in the critical care setting, and what strategies can nurses employ to enhance their communication skills and patient interactions? 4. What strategies and best practices do you recommend for ensuring seamless and accurate handover and documentation processes among ICU nurses, particularly during shift changes, to maintain continuity of care and minimize the risk of errors or oversights? 5. The safe transport of patients between the operating room and the ICU is a critical aspect of perioperative care. Can you share insights into the role of OT NURSES and ICU nurses in ensuring the smooth transition of patients during this process, and what strategies can enhance communication and coordination for a seamless transfer of care? 6. Neonatal ICU nurses play a vital role in caring for premature and critically ill newborns. Can you highlight some key aspects of collaboration and communication between neonatologists and neonatal nurses that are essential for providing the best care for these fragile patients? 7. In the neonatal ICU, nurses often provide hands-on care and serve as primary caregivers for newborns. What are some specialized training and skills that nurses should acquire to excel in neonatal nursing, and how can they best support neonatologists in optimizing outcomes for these vulnerable infants? 8. In the cardiothoracic intensive care unit, nurses play a key role in caring for patients’ post-cardiac surgery. What are some critical aspects of patient assessment and monitoring that nurses should prioritize to ensure the safe recovery of these patients, particularly in the early post-operative period? 9. Effective teamwork is essential in the cardiothoracic intensive care setting. Can you share insights into how nurses and cardiac anaesthetists can collaborate seamlessly to manage complex patients, such as those undergoing heart surgeries, and what communication strategies can enhance this collaboration for the benefit of patient care? 10. As healthcare professionals, nurses play a vital role in the operating room alongside anaesthetists. From the perspective of our nursing colleagues, what advice or recommendations can you provide to enhance the collaboration and coordination between nurses and anaesthetists during surgical procedures, ultimately ensuring the best possible patient outcomes?
