WISE ,UNWISE OR OTHERWISE...

Diwali Or Deepavali?

“The Great Festival of lights”– How we Indians celebrating in North and South.

Lamps first, legends later: fields once whispered with rows of light, a harvest's hush becoming a nation's chorus of dawn and dusk.

- In the North, Ayodhya blooms, Rama returns, and every diya is a footstep home on Kartik's moonless night. In the South, before the sun, oil gleams on skin as Krishna and Satyabhama unthorn the world of Narakasura's dark on Naraka Chaturdashi
- One river, many names—Deepavali, Diwali—each wick spelling hope in another tongue of flame. Thresholds turn to canvases: Rangoli sings in color, Kolam hums in rice-white geometry of welcome.
- Five brief tides rise and fall—Dhanteras to Bhai Dooj—shelling the week with prayer, gift, and glow. Lakshmi is invited where books are balanced, ledgers opened, and futures tidied like fresh-swept steps.
- Fireworks write vanishing constellations; children keep them in their pockets anyway, as stories for tomorrow. A bitter gourd is crushed; a sweet is shared—both ways to end a darkness and begin again.

Call it light, or learning, or love—the festival answers to all three and arrives when called.

Centre of Health Management Excellence (HMX): Catalyzing the Future of Healthcare Leadership

We are proud to announce the launch of the Centre of Health Management Excellence (HMX) under the aegis of Mahatma Gandhi College of Hospital Administration (MGCOHA), MGUMST. Rooted in a mission to empower healthcare professionals with strategic insight, digital readiness, and managerial acumen, HMX will focus on four key pillars: Empower, Support, Provide, and Generate. These pillars represent our commitment to transformative education, institutional strengthening, leadership development, and data-driven healthcare management.

Through flagship programs, fellowships, and strategic collaborations, HMX aspires to shape next-generation healthcare leaders who can respond effectively to today's complex challenges—be it public health systems, hospital operations, or digital therapeutics.
