

Ms.Urvashi Prasad

Urvashi Prasad is a public policy expert working at the intersection of health, nutrition, and inclusive development. She has served in the Office of the Vice Chairman, NITI Aayog, and contributed to flagship national initiatives on medical education, the Covid response, nutrition, and women's empowerment. With a background spanning public health, development economics and patient advocacy, she brings expertise in evidence-based policymaking and stakeholder engagement. Urvashi has authored widely on health systems and social equity, and is recognized for her role in shaping India's discourse on universal health coverage. She continues to mentor young professionals and advocate for policies that strengthen equity and resilience in India's development journey.